And I can’t tell you just what I am seeing, a ghost or just persistence of being Because you’ve always existed and all that you do Will refine and define the outline of you the persistence of memory persistence of being the persistence of love and of you